

DID YOU KNOW: Last year UC paid $4.2 BILLION in salaries to its management?

- In 2008, UC management salaries took up 21% of UC's budget.
- By comparison, 8% of UC's budget went towards instruction.
- This is the same management that won't answer how a 3% overall revenue reduction adds up to 41% increases to student fees.

Meanwhile our classes, programs, and options are drying up...

DID YOU KNOW: Last year UC paid $4.2 BILLION in salaries to its management?

- In 2008, UC management salaries took up 21% of UC's budget.
- By comparison, 8% of UC's budget went towards instruction.
- This is the same management that won't answer how a 3% overall revenue reduction adds up to 41% increases to student fees.

Meanwhile our classes, programs, and options are drying up...

IT'S UP TO US. KNOW THE MYTHS FROM THE FACTS.

MYTH #1 – Money spent on construction is unrelated to what you get in the classroom.

FACT: UC uses some student fees to pay interest on construction loans. Don't think loan interest adds up to a lot? UC pays $300 million in this kind of interest yearly. That's half of this year's proclaimed budget shortfall.

MYTH #2 – UC can't use any of its billions in reserves to keep standards up and student fees down.

FACT: According to the National Association of College and University Business Officers (NACUBO), many universities facing budget shortfalls are tapping their reserves to preserve programs and services while the economy recovers. In fact, the Berkeley and San Diego campuses announced they will do the same, and it's up to us to make sure we have a say on what's preserved with this money.

MYTH #3 –The budget problem is all Sacramento's fault.

FACT: UC administration's bad choices have a lot to do with why we're here now. UC has prioritized executives over education. We'll make our best case for public reinvestment in UC once UC cleans its house.

MYTH #4 –UC is working hard on staying public, not on privatizing.

FACT: Continually raising student fees is privatizing. More and more California students are being priced out of education in our own state, making social mobility less and less accessible.

STRIKE 11/18-20: OUR FUTURE, OUR VOICE, OUR CHOICE

IT'S UP TO US. KNOW THE MYTHS FROM THE FACTS.

MYTH #1 – Money spent on construction is unrelated to what you get in the classroom.

FACT: UC uses some student fees to pay interest on construction loans. Don't think loan interest adds up to a lot? UC pays $300 million in this kind of interest yearly. That's half of this year's proclaimed budget shortfall.

MYTH #2 – UC can't use any of its billions in reserves to keep standards up and student fees down.

FACT: According to the National Association of College and University Business Officers (NACUBO), many universities facing budget shortfalls are tapping their reserves to preserve programs and services while the economy recovers. In fact, the Berkeley and San Diego campuses announced they will do the same, and it's up to us to make sure we have a say on what's preserved with this money.

MYTH #3 –The budget problem is all Sacramento's fault.

FACT: UC administration's bad choices have a lot to do with why we're here now. UC has prioritized executives over education. We'll make our best case for public reinvestment in UC once UC cleans its house.

MYTH #4 –UC is working hard on staying public, not on privatizing.

FACT: Continually raising student fees is privatizing. More and more California students are being priced out of education in our own state, making social mobility less and less accessible.

STRIKE 11/18-20: OUR FUTURE, OUR VOICE, OUR CHOICE